This Division will form in the open space omestic economy that has more to do with scald wives and crotche y servants than most people imagine. The public have long sought an improvement in this article, and we believe are ready to pay ment in this article, and we believe are ready to pay any reasonable price for a cooking stove, if it only passesses the merits of size, weight, convenience, durability, economy, and perfection of manufactur. These qualities seem to be possessed most fairly in the Econ most—a new stove, perfected and brought out the past season, by Messrs, Treadwell, Perry & Norton, of Albany. We heard so much of this steve, and it booked so much like a stove intended for use, that we concluded its name in durability and the use of firel. Among the many conveniences attached to it, may be mentioned a large oven, with hooks arranged, for suspending ments while rousting. A copper water tank, holding from 12 to 25 gallons—warming closest, broiling hearth, &c., &c. The broiling hearth is one of the most noticeable features of this remarkable stove. There never has been, to our knowledge, any broiling fixture that was reedly satisfactory in its eperation. The proprietors of this stove have been conducting a series of experiments upon broiling, eliciting some valuable facts, and resulting in the invention of a gridiron adapted to this stove, which has been secured by letters patent, and is one of the most admirable things of the kind its name in durability and the use of fuel. Amand is one of the most admirable things of the kind we ever saw—broiling without snoke, and keeping the coals in a constant glow. We are always glad to do justice to mechanical improvements, and compared to the coals of the co pecially such as contribute so largely to the general good, as the one above mentioned.
